A clearer way to be discovered

Help prospective patients understand your services before they make contact.

People exploring ADHD assessments often need answers to practical questions. Is an NHS-funded pathway available? Who can be assessed? Are appointments online? What happens after diagnosis? How long might they wait?

My ADHD Path brings provider information into a structured, easy-to-explore directory. Your listing offers a dedicated place to explain what your organisation provides, who it supports and how people can take the next step.

MORE THAN A NAME IN A DIRECTORY

Services	Adult or child assessments, medication and aftercare
Pathways	NHS Right to Choose, other NHS and private options
Practical details	Coverage, waiting times, pricing and next steps

A specialist context for your organisation

A branded profile places your service information within a resource focused on ADHD information, assessment options and next steps. Visitors can explore providers by relevant criteria and follow direct links to the provider for further information.

Built around informed choice

The directory is an independent information resource. Paid listings offer a professional advertising presence and, for Featured providers, clearly labelled promotional visibility. They are not clinical recommendations, and no volume of visits, enquiries or referrals is guaranteed.

Our aim: make ADHD services easier to find, easier to understand and easier to choose, with accurate information and clear referral routes.

A wider ADHD information network

My ADHD Path is part of a growing network of three specialist ADHD information websites, helping people find clear, practical guidance at different stages of their journey.

What this means for providers

Provider Directory listings are hosted on My ADHD Path. Relevant provider information may also be referenced across our wider network where editorially appropriate. Additional cross-site promotional placements are not included unless expressly agreed.

A professional profile, built around clarity
